Remembering Michael

A tribute compiled from sources around campus and printed in the order received

Michael Forrester served Fuller Seminary in a variety of capacities for decades. Beginning in early 1968 as a custodian, he moved to the Mail Center and then into a carrier position. Shares Margie McKenna, his supervisor, "the last line I wrote on his job description was, 'and any special needs.' He was in charge of the easels, he unlocked the doors, he answered any pager requests, he picked up the mail every morning at the post office, he helped with any setups..."

On August 1, Michael suffered a heart attack while at work. He spent several months in the hospital with a variety of complications, and went to be with the Lord in mid-November.

Michael was a very special person. He did a lot for others; people don't realize how much he did and how many lives he touched. He would do anything for anybody. I could always depend on him. He had no boundaries; he once told Dr. Mouw he thought I deserved a raise! He loved Fuller... And he called everybody! He used to call me regularly—people call me and say, "You know, I really miss getting a phone call on a Sunday or a Saturday from Michael." He touched a lot of people.

Michael was a person of great determination; he beat all the odds. They told him that he would never be able to drive and that he couldn't hold a job; he proved them wrong.

Margie McKenna, Auxiliary Services

did he deserve to be asked in that tone, Michael led me to the proper authorities who could help me. He never looked disgusted; only willing to help this obviously disgusted student.

Later, upon learning that Michael had only been walking through the department where I happened to be, and that he was under no obligation whatsoever to assist me, I was able to see how his response was a truly selfless act, a caring gesture, a true example of "second-mile" living. A little thing, some might say. But two years later, it is still the first thing I remember when I think of Michael.

Michael, you are remembered and missed.

Randy Parks, CATS Th.M. student

He was always willing to go the extra mile for our department—even when I didn't have anything for him, he'd keep asking me, "What can I do for you?" When I told him that my kids were sick, he came with a huge bottle of Sprite; he always did those extra things. He was always there, even on weekends. He was very dependable; there were a lot of faithful things he did that I will always remember, things he did for me personally and for the department.

Jeanne Handojo, Auxiliary Services

Meeting Michael came about during one of those frustrating, discouraging, and slightly arrogant moments felt by new students upon returning to school after a career and realizing that they are no longer in charge of their worlds. Not being able to find the person I wanted to get the answers I "needed," I saw Michael appear. "Do you work here?" I asked gruffly. "Well, yes," he responded politely. "Well, I need the 'such-and-such and I need it right now," I demanded. Though it was not his responsibility, nor Sidewalk encounters were the typical form of communication for Michael and me. Out of the blue would come questions he was pondering concerning the seminary. More often than not, Michael would want to express an opinion on some matter and remind me of his lengthy years of service to the seminary, a real source of pride for him. Indeed, Michael was a tireless worker. I knew him best from the efficient mail service he provided to our offices. As Fuller's mail carrier, little could deter him from his "appointed rounds." The dedication with which Michael performed his work is a model to us all. I will miss him.

Grant C. Millikan, Assistant Provost

From the time Michael was honored in chapel for his decades of service, I would greet him as an "honorary professor" among us. That always drew a faint smile.

Dr. Russell Spittler, Provost

LORD ACTON ESSAY CONTEST

The Acton Institute for the Study of Religion and Liberty is pleased to announce the 1998 Lord Acton Essay Contest. This year's contest is based on this quotation from Lord Acton:

"The moral foundation of political economy is not the satisfaction of appetite but the fulfillment of duties. Labour, patience, justice, peace, and self-denial are the mainsprings of economical production, and the metaphysical basis of the science is not in a philosophy which reduces religion and science to mere satisfaction of an appetite, like eating or drinking, but in the verification of the promise, 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His justice and all these things'—the necessities of life—'shall be added unto you.'"

Application deadline: January 15, 1998.

Guidelines for submission are available in the Office of Financial Aid.

THE SANDY FORD MEMORIAL FUND

Sixteen scholarships of $20,000 for the 1998-1999 academic year are available for those pursuing careers in missions and/or evangelism. Michael's MEMORIAL SERVICE

We have included here just a few of the remarks from the December 2 campus memorial service for Michael. Tapes of the service are available from the Media Center.

When I came to Fuller in 1970, Michael was the first person I met on campus. I was intimidated; Michael made me feel at home. He started out a janitor and he ended up 'campus coordinator.' I think that's a great title for Michael; there wasn't a thing going on at Fuller that Michael didn't know about and have an opinion about. Indeed, Michael was the most powerful person on this campus; you could tell by the number of keys he had. You could also tell by how much he knew.

I knew that he was a man of influence. I knew that if I needed to get something done, the person I needed to go to was Michael. Michael was the most valuable person on my staff, and he didn't even work for me! He was always there to unlock the doors at unreasonable hours; to see that signs were up; to make sure that everything was clean; he stayed around to help pick up trash...he was considerate, and he was conscientious. He was also very much a tease; he would bait you. He would lay out a question or pose some idea, and then he would look over the top of his glasses to see how you were going to respond. He'd wait for that answer, and then he would either burst out laughing or chuckle with delight. He was a great guy; I enjoyed him.

I think he was the grease that made the Fuller clock tick. I tried to think of the words that I would use to describe Michael without getting too sappy: faithful and conscientious, trustworthy, accountable, generous, friendly, considerate, humorous and caring all came to mind. What you saw with Michael was what you got, and it doesn't get much better than that.

Dr. Mel Robeck, SOT Faculty

When David Allan Hubbard retired, he and I were standing out in front of Slessor; Michael walked by, and David called him over and put his arm around him and said, "Michael, I'm gonna be leaving in a couple days, and it's up to you to run the place when I'm gone—keep an eye on this guy for me." And I want to say, I've really been privileged to work for Michael Forrester these last several years.

If I had to think of one word that characterized the ministry of Michael Forrester in our midst, it would be the word "faithful." He displayed faithfulness in our midst with marvelous consistency. With other people it could sound like boasting, but it was never boasting with Michael when he would tell you how many years he'd been at Fuller, how many sick days he had accumulated.... Michael was a faithful servant, a faithful minister in our midst, and it was wonderful to work for him. He's already heard it by now from somebody far more important than I, but I've got to say here today: "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Dr. Richard J. Mouw, President

Michael Forrester spent a lot of time hanging on my desk, because my desk was part of his suite. He would often stand there and talk to me and be with me, and after about 45 minutes I'd say, "Michael, how 'bout you go do this for me?" This started about four years ago, and it got so that by last year, I had a right arm with Michael. I thought I was just productive, but I've found out in the last four months that I'm not productive without Michael. He did all my shredding; he went to get milk for my baby; he went and got paper; he went to the grocery store; he never let me run out of cups... He was just so wonderful; I miss him, and he's my friend.

Tammi Anderson, Assistant to the Vice President for Finance

To the Fuller Community:

Your thoughtfulness and caring during this time have meant so much to us that words cannot express our feelings.

The support we received was deeply appreciated and will always be remembered.

Michael always symbolized for me the stability of Fuller. He was, in a way, like a sunrise: "Yes, the world is still here." So, Michael—Fuller is still here. And his faithful devotion is legendary. He reminds me and us all that it actually takes all of us to make Fuller be what it should and needs to be.

Dr. David M. Scholer, SOT faculty

One of the first people to welcome me back to Fuller when I arrived as dean was Michael. He remembered me as a student nearly 20 years ago, and he was enthusiastic about another student's returning "home." Michael was able to name all of the former students who were now staff and faculty of Fuller, some of whom graduated several decades ago. He took pride in knowing them by name—and he considered all of us as his personal friends. I felt the same about him. Over the past two years, he and I repeated this discussion several times, and each time he expressed the same degree of enthusiasm for these returning students who were now his colleagues. Michael considered each one a kind of "cousin."

Dr. James Guy, Dean, School of Psychology

Although my interactions with Michael were brief, I feel a deep gratitude for his faithful service to Fuller. In a seminary world of constant change, Michael's 30-year commitment to Fuller was a reassuring sign. He seemed always to have been available and his faithfulness could be trusted. He will be missed.

John Hull, D.Min. office

A Tribute To Michael

Who will always be remembered—

With a willing spirit

With a smiling face

With a cooperative attitude

As a team player

A friend to all.

God bless Michael, who will be sorely missed!

Marilyn Marshall,
Office of the General Counsel

I appreciated Michael for his faithfulness in picking up our newspapers from the library lobby and bringing them inside. I would know when he was absent because of the newspapers' being outside the library. I will miss and remember him always, because now I am picking up the newspapers and cannot expect him to do it, because he will be 'absent' forever...

Genalyn McNeil, Library

I'm thinking...I actually didn't "know" Michael, yet his cheery heart warmed mine as we met at the same doorway almost every time I arrived on campus. He always had a kind greeting and a smile.

Patricia Rexroat, Director of Extended Education

Some time ago, during a staff breakfast the President talked about "Premise Keepers." I remember at that moment thinking of Michael Forrester. Now, there is something unusual when walking into the office during the weekend; you kind of expect him to show up with his blue hat, his handkerchief sticking out his side pocket, reminding me to shut the entrance door, to double lock the exit door, to turn off the lights of the ladies' rest room...and oh! Transients have been going through the trash again, and please don't jaywalk, the police have been ticketing people again, and yes, he has the keys, he can help me anytime. His compassionate, caring ownership of our premises was very touching. He was indeed a reliable and faithful servant; he loved his job and gave fully to it, 'til his last breath. We miss you, Michael!

Yalem Haile, Continuing Education

I met Michael in 1971 when I was introduced to the Seminary team. We were a lot smaller team in the early 1970s; this enabled us to work together and to get to know each other very well. Michael worked in the maintenance department in those days. The variety of jobs and errands he was asked to do was very similar to his tasks during the last few years.

Michael's assignments and demeanor sometimes combined to result in his being treated very insensitively. He often came to my office to cry and complain—he was very keen on that—or, more recently, to Margie McKenna's office. I came to know Michael as a sensitive and caring person. He had the gift of service and he served Fuller Theological Seminary as faithfully as anyone. Michael did not have his own office or his own telephone. His official ranking in the corporate structure did not reflect the reality of the importance of his ministry to each of us. I remain convinced that God will NOT care what our work was—He will value our contribution to His Kingdom and our character and obedience. Michael was a person of high character and a servant leader; we all have learned important lessons from him. I am grateful for the time I spent with him and the lessons he taught to me regarding faithful service.

Lee Merritt, Vice President for Finance

On behalf of the faculty, staff, and students of the School of World Mission, I would like to express our sincerest regrets to the family and friends of Michael Forrester. We pray that you would experience God's peace and presence in this time. We have known his smile, his constant presence, and his longevity of service to be gifts from God, and we will truly miss him.

Grateful for his faithfulness,

Dr. J. Dudley Woodberry, Dean, School of World Mission

I feel very sad in the passing of Michael. I always felt he was a good friend and co-worker. He was always a very congenial person around Fuller Seminary. I know he is already missed by staff, faculty, and the student body. I'm sure he is looking down and saying, "Look, now I have new keys and a new job."

Betty Berg, switchboard operator Emerita

Michael Forrester and I came to Fuller the same year, Michael as staff and I as a student. I lived in Dorm 180 and Michael was assigned to clean it. We spent hours in conversation, joking and discussing what was happening on campus. Since that time 30 years ago, Michael would greet me with a question or a comment whenever I returned to campus. (He was, as we all know, a rich source of information!) His loyalty to Fuller and to its people was total. We have lost a close friend.

Dr. Robert K. Johnston, SOT Faculty

If heaven includes the phenomenon of a delighted smile at the arrival of an unexpected visitor, such an expression will come from my old friend and Fuller alum, Nancy Fulton, who went to be with the Lord in 1983. It was Nancy who first introduced me to Michael when I started my job at Fuller in 1976—Nancy had an excellent gift for recognizing God's true servants! I have many memories of Michael during the days when he delivered the campus mail, and in the recent years when he opened the psychology building we would often meet in the elevator early in the morning. Michael was a true servant of God, loyally doing jobs we took for granted. His warm greetings added joy to my day, and often reminded me of my departed friend. I take comfort in thinking of Nancy and Michael enjoying a cup of heavenly brew in The Highest Grounds.

Dr. Hendrika Vande Kemp, SOP faculty

Michael Forrester was my friend. We would rarely cross paths without sharing conversation. When I worked on Saturdays, (yes, faculty do it too, sometimes!) we would often meet in the SOP lobby while he was waiting to open or close a building for a weekend activity. Those serendipitous conversations were precious.

When visiting Michael in the hospital, I was touched by his cheerful spirit and his trademark concern for his Fuller friends. I was also deeply moved watching his siblings minister to his emotional and physical needs. I could see that Michael's caring and compassion were traits shared by the entire Forrester family. I rejoice knowing that he is in Heaven, and I look forward to many more conversations. For now, however, Michael Forrester is a man whose death deserves to be grieved, and our sorrow is a tribute to the man no longer with us.

Dr. Jeffrey Bjorck, SOP faculty

Michael Forrester and I had a running gag line for 20 years. He had helped me carry some boxes into my office one day, and let me know that I was pretty feeble to need all this help. I was new, and not very sure whether he was kidding or disgusted—after all, there were very few women around in those days. Maybe he DID think that I belonged at home.... The shoe dropped when, the next few times he saw me, carrying a book, a piece of paper, a cola, maybe just my purse, I'd hear the same thing: "Hey, Libbie! Are you sure that

Attention: East Asian International Students

A message from the President's Cabinet

Fuller Theological Seminary has become increasingly aware of the economic crisis that is currently affecting many countries in East Asia. While Fuller acknowledges that this is a complicated situation that may not have positive solutions in the near future, we want to partner to assist students who find themselves in financial difficulty due to this situation.

As a temporary form of assistance, Fuller would like to offer an extension of the tuition deferment policy. Any student who has been affected by the East Asia crisis, particularly those from Korea, Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia, and Hong Kong, may apply for this extension.

International students in this situation who have not yet registered for winter quarter, or who have registered and have not cleared their student accounts, will be permitted to apply for a tuition deferment through the spring term. This will allow you to carry a tuition balance on your student account through and including the spring term. Additionally, Fuller will reverse the interest charged to your account during this period (Fuller will take responsibility for the interest).

Fuller Seminary will continue to monitor this situation and will evaluate what action may be needed to assist students further.

Students who wish to apply for the tuition deferment must come to the International Student Services (ISS) Office.

Please know that we and our President's Cabinet colleagues are in prayer for you and others affected by the economic crisis.

isn't too heavy for you?" followed by great chuckles—Michael had a great laugh.

I can't begin to enumerate the number of times he helped me when I locked myself out of my office. The most recent was this last Commencement Day. I had lost my set of keys while I was at a conference in Indiana, and I'd arrived home late the night before. I knew my cap and gown were in my office, and it was only when I was almost at Fuller that I realized I wouldn't be able to get to them—it was Saturday morning, everything was locked, and I had no keys. But as I drove in, there was Michael, sitting on the fender of his car right by the mail room. No winged messenger ever looked more like an angel than Michael did at that moment—and he didn't even laugh at me this time!

One of his hobbies was tinkering. For some reason, we once got into a conversation about wiring, and I told him my frustrations with a couple of lamps I had. The next thing I knew, he was at my door to pick up those lamps and fix them. He would not accept payment, either.

Michael, a very belated thank you, for everything you did for me. I think we often pay attention to those angels with external dazzle, and take for granted the quiet ones. But in heaven, I'll bet you've got a crown!

Dr. Elizabeth Patterson, SOT faculty

When we first came to Fuller in 1971, Michael became a much-appreciated person in our lives as he was joyfully serving the Lord as a custodian. He cared about our needs and always took the time to have a chat. Our relationship remained the same over the past 28 years. We will miss reminiscing with him about the past, and his happy greeting. But Michael, you certainly left loving memories with us.

Dr. Archibald (SOP faculty) and Kathleen Hart

I guess I hit it off with Michael right away. He was one of the first people I felt comfortable being around when I first came to Fuller almost 10 years ago. Most of all, I like to remember the side of Michael that would tease me and help me remember maybe not to take the world so seriously that I forgot what life was about. Michael's humor sometimes made me feel like I was losing my mind; I'll never forget the times he would switch the professors' mail into the wrong boxes, and I would seriously consider seeking mental help. I wanted to strangle him sometimes, but would always manage to laugh at his antics when I thought about how really funny he was. Yes, I will miss Michael the Mailman and the unique way he helped us all feel somewhat equal as children of God.

Dan Payne, Mail Center

Michael Forrester never compromised his dignity, and he never let anyone else compromise it, either. That was his great gift to us. May we treasure it and learn from it.
